

Love Still Grows and Sweetens

I still know your heart, my child, I still feel you near I still hear your voice, so soft, through the depths of love, my dear

Love is what you took with you and love is what we keep And love still grows and sweetens, even through the tears I weep

You say, "Love's even greater, far beyond my love for you."
You laid me at God's feet, my child, what a gift, my spirit true!

I still feel your presence, and I still see your face I will listen, oh so closely, so our hearts can still embrace

I will go on living and do what God wants me to But anyone who knows me, through me, will love you, too

My heart I will keep open so I can hear your voice, I've changed my way of loving you because I have no choice

Home is where the heart is, so home is where you are My love's with you in the skies of blue, beyond the farthest star!
